

Starvation Key Weapon

Weedkiller Off to War

Nation's Food Vulnerable Expert Says

Whole nations could perish from starvation and disease in a third world war fought with germs, weed-killers and insecticides as weapons, an eminent plant scientist said in Victoria last night.

Dr. William Newton, former director of plant pathology at the Dominion Experimental Station at Saanichton, told Victoria North Kiwanis Club an intensified study of "the delicate balance of nature" is our best defence against biological attack.

MADE IT CLEAR

"I am glad the people of Victoria have made it clear that they wish to have Thetis Lake park left undisturbed," he said.

Biological warfare is essentially the art of upsetting nature's balance, said Dr. Newton. Unless we learn more about it through study of plants and wildlife in undisturbed areas like Thetis Lake "we will not be able to offset deliberate attempts by enemies to upset the normal balance."

RICIDULOUSLY EASY

He said the means of destroying our food supplies are so "ridiculously easy I am quite sure the militarists of the East have given the matter considerable thought."

Intercontinental missiles could be used to create a "fall-out of potent plant killer" over our principal crop production areas, said Dr. Newton. He added weedkillers are in existence that have "a very injurious effect" upon soil fertility.

EXTREMELY INJURIOUS

Insecticides, some of them extremely injurious to man, have a lethal effect that persists for "an alarming time," and these compounds have an advantage over atomic bombs and disease-spreading organisms because they do not "boomerang" on the user.

Dr. Newton said a few spores of a new strain of wheat rust dropped on a crop in Texas would virtually wipe out the harvest in the whole midwest including Manitoba and Saskatchewan in a single season.

BEEF AND MILK

In a similar manner animal diseases like foot and mouth disease could be used to destroy beef and milk supply.

Nevertheless, said Dr. Newton, the future of the world would be better safeguarded if militarists on both sides turned from nuclear weapons to the development of "equally fiendish and destructive biological weapons."

After a war involving modern biological weapons, he said, at least part of humanity and part of the world would remain unimpaired, while an atomic war would spell the end of civilization and fill the world with degenerates.

Is Milk Drinking Trifle Gauche?

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Do you consider it gauche to drink milk in public? You're apparently not alone.

A solemn group of individuals from the milk industry has come to the conclusion that many people think milk isn't a "socially acceptable" drink — unlike coffee, beer, liquor or soft drinks.

To increase milk consumption, they were told yesterday, the white stuff must have its social status raised.

Navy to Get New Sonar

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian It is towed behind destroyers are to be equipped with a revolutionary type of submarine detection gear, it was learned Tuesday.

The equipment, known as variable depth sonar, was developed by the defence research board's naval research establishment at Dartmouth, N.S.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan yesterday charged Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi with using his position in the handling of contracts to benefit "companies sympathetic or friendly with this government."

He said $12,000,000 in contracts are involved and "I am convinced that contracts are being given and handled in a manner which does damage to the public purse."

SALARY VOTE

"I find it difficult to believe there has been no political interference," Mr. Strachan stated in the legislature during discussion of the highway minister's salary vote.

Mr. Gaglardi, vigorously denying the allegations, boomed: "Although all my contractors are my friends, no contractor would ever dare say he gained an advantage."

EQUAL FOOTING

"They are all on an equal footing and on the same basis," Mr. Gaglardi charged Mr. Strachan with making "wild, fantastic, unrelated and absurd statements . . . without making accusations . . . headline hunting . . . blackening someone's reputation and trying to break down the moral fibre of my department."

EVERY DOLLAR

"Every contract and every job done and every dollar paid is in the public accounts," Mr. Gaglardi said. "Nobody can get a contract from the government unless he bids."

"It is absolutely impossible for any contract to cost the people any extra money. The contracts are all studied by the engineers and officials of the highways department."

NO REGARD

Mr. Strachan charged that "contracts had been awarded without regard to financial stability or engineering capability of firms concerned." He said the construction industry had suggested a pre-qualification system be set up. Mr. Gaglardi replied that a

CITY AIR TERMINAL PLEDGED BY HEES

'Delighted Again' Victoria Reaction

Transport Minister George Hees told the House of Commons in Ottawa last night that work will start this fiscal year on a $1,100,000 airport terminal at Patricia Bay.

But Victoria officials who have been fighting for airport improvement greeted the news with caution.

"They've told us this so often we don't know whether to believe them or not," said W. A. Pendray, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

PROMISES SEEN

"What we'd like to see is some results instead of the kind of promises we've seen for the last three years."

Equally restrained in his reaction to the news was Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, who said:

EACH TIME

"I am delighted to hear that they're going ahead with it, but then I've been delighted each time I've heard it."

Ald. Edgelow termed the Hees announcement "long overdue," and Mr. Pendray said he would start to feel jubilant "when I see the thing under way."

HELD UP

The announcement quoted Mr. Hees as saying the new passenger terminal project had been held up while studies were being made to determine the effects of a proposed helicopter service between Victoria, Vancouver and other mainland points.

THAT'S NEWS TO ME

said Ald. Edgelow.

MP CREDITED

Mr. Hees credited Victoria MP A. DeB. McPhillips for his interest in the project.

A former Liberal transport minister, Lionel Chevrier, yesterday described Patricia Bay Airport terminal as a "glorified chicken coop."

Following Mr. Hees' announcement, transport officials said they believed construction of the new building would start before Dec. 31, and not the end of the fiscal year, which comes March 31, 1961.

Cubans Reject 'Insult'

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government Tuesday rejected as "insulting" U.S. protests against Premier Fidel Castro's accusations of sabotage. Foreign Minister Raul Roa handed a note to U.S. charge d'affaires Daniel Braddock demanding that Cuban officials be addressed with "absolute respect . . . without descending to offensive utterances of a personal character."

U.S. State Secretary Herter Monday denounced Castro's charge that U.S. officials were responsible for Friday's munitions ship blast in Havana that took more than 50 lives.

18 Men Trapped 485 Feet Down

LOGAN, W. Va. (UPI) — A roof fall and fire trapped 18 miners 485 feet underground yesterday and it was feared deadly carbon monoxide was getting into the mine shaft.

Mine officials at first expressed optimism that the miners would be rescued unharmed. But one of the men who made his way to the surface said carbon monoxide was getting into the mine shaft.

Willis Carter, 46, one of two men who made their way to the surface after being trapped inside the Island Creek Coal Co.'s No. 22 mine at nearby Holden, said the original work force, said "the odds are against them."

Carbon monoxide from the fire is getting back into the mine. Paul Lingo, deputy director of the state's mines department, said he was "very pessimistic" that the men would be rescued. He said their fate hinges on whether they erected a proper barricade behind the fire.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

PAPERS and magazines are full of articles advising people how to lose weight. Stories about clogged traffic in cities cover a lot of newsprint, as well.

The cities and the people of North America are too fat and short of breath.

One machine might be the salvation of paunchy humans and fat, smoky cities, both at the same time: the bicycle.

If more people rode bicycles, there would be fewer pot bellies, fewer traffic jams and less smog. The market for reducing pills and "how to get thin" books would decline.

People could go on gorging rich, unhealthy food without worrying about lard on the heart, or the hungry millions in other lands. There is nothing like exercise to calm the conscience and induce sleep.

On any moderately crowded day downtown, a cyclist can give a man in a car a handicap and beat him in a race.

Government and chambers of commerce should campaign for increased use of the bicycle, both as a physical fitness device and as a cure for traffic jams. People can readily go shopping on bicycles with carriers.

Cities that are installing pedestrian malls should make provision for cycle lanes.

It is true that on busy highways outside cities, where the traffic moves rapidly, bicycles can be dangerous. Road-builders should lay out separate cycle tracks—as they do in some countries of Europe.

As our roads grow more and more crowded with big tin beetles, must we build more, and more roads, until the whole country is one vast road?

It would be wiser to encourage the use of such sturdy transit devices as bicycles, horses and human legs. Most of us are not in as much of a hurry as we think.

Seeking to put my theories into practice, I dragged out my old wide-handlebar bicycle, upon which I had delivered papers as a boy, and set out to ride 10 miles from my house to town.

The first time, I covered half a mile and got a flat tire. The second time, I reached a point 10 yards from my door. Then the chain broke.

I still think it's a good idea. I intend to try a third time, as soon as the weather gets warmer.

Have Come Far.

Indian Progress Historic

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Native-born Indians have "come farther under greater difficulties and in a shorter time than any other social group in history," an Indian conference was told here Tuesday.

Earl F. Anfield, deputy commissioner for Indian affairs, told the Native Brotherhood of B.C.'s annual convention that the province's Indians are "learning to manage their own affairs as Canadians with as little control as possible."

Education is still the greatest need of Indian people, he said, expressing concern that only 30 per cent of the 9,000 Indian school children of the province attend non-Indian schools.

"I believe your children are citizens of Canada and that the best place for them to learn about Canada is among citizens of Canada," Mr. Anfield said.

"As long as Indian students are separated from whites, there is a gulf between them. Where there is a gulf, there is misunderstanding."

He warned that the "pick-and-hovel man is a very low man on the totem pole," and urged Indians to take full advantage of training programs and assistance from the Indian affairs department.

TRANSPORT MINISTER HEES

Hees Defends Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada received as good as she gave in the negotiation of international air agreements, Transport Minister Hees maintained Tuesday.

Defending his policies against Liberal and CCF criticism, he said in the Commons that the aim of international aviation is to make it as easy as possible for travellers to get from one point to another.

This required the provision of air services, "not the protection of airlines to the detriment of the travelling public, which was always the policy of the former (Liberal) government."

He charged the Liberals with acting on behalf of monopolies and vested interests in criticizing the air pacts and government policy of easing licensing requirements for certain types of chartered air services.

Mr. Hees spoke on non-confidence motions proposed by Lionel Chevrier (L., Montreal Laurier) and Douglas Fisher (CCF, Port Arthur). The Liberal motion accused the government of surrendering air rights without getting similar rights in return, discriminating against small domestic air-

Speaking on a Social Credit motion calling on the federal government to remedy the "serious defects in our national economy," Mr. Hooke said, "We need some reforms in our money systems if we are going to enjoy economic security."

Cuban Fugitive:

Heat of Water Blasted Ship

BOGOTA, Columbia (UPI)—The Cuban naval attaché to Venezuela, arriving here yesterday to seek political asylum, said the French-manned ship La Coubre exploded at a Havana pier Friday because of the heat of the harbor water.

Capt. Felipe Vidal, Santiago, said Premier Fidel Castro's charges that U.S. agents sabotaged the ship were "ridiculous."

Vidal, who resigned his post in protest over what he termed Castro's dictatorial policies, said hot water created in a cooling process at the Havana electric plant is emptied at the pier and has a high temperature. This, he said, caused the munitions to be heated to the point of explosion.

The ship sank in the harbor with a heavy loss of life.

Vidal said he previously held the post of chief of the maritime police and had issued orders that no ships carrying munitions should be berthed at the pier.

He said his successor, who is only a rebel officer and not a technician, probably ignored the temperatures of the water around the fatal pier.

CUBAN TRAITOR

The 34-year-old captain said he is convinced Castro is a Communist-tainted dictator and a traitor to Cuba.

He said he never received a reply to the report from the Cuban government.

BROTHER ARRESTED

Later, he said, his wife telephoned him from Havana and told him his mother and brother had been arrested there.

Vidal said he would seek asylum from the Colombian government and start a civil disobedience campaign against Castro.

Vote Thursday

Marathon Talkfest All Over?

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate finally quit its non-stop talking about civil rights Tuesday night and set for Thursday morning a vote on whether to halt the filibuster by southerners.

The record-breaking oral session that started Feb. 29 finally ground to a halt at 6:10 p.m. MST after 18 southern Democrats had kept the words flowing almost continuously for 157 hours and 41 minutes. The Senate had recessed for Sunday.

The verbal marathon by the civil rights opponents far outlasted the previous record talkfest, the 1954 filibuster against an atomic energy bill. That took 85 hours and 23 minutes.

The recess, until 10:30 a.m. today, was agreed to by the Democratic and Republican leaders after a day of parliamentary manoeuvring in which civil rights advocates succeeded in forcing a vote on closure—ending the debate—on Thursday morning.

Few believe the closure petition has a chance of passing.

Bone Southerners Tar Out Northerners

WASHINGTON (AP)—With soft southern accents filling the United States Senate chamber these days, Senator Barry M. Goldwater (Rep., Ark.) yesterday put into the congressional record what he called a word list to help other senators understand what the southerners are saying in the civil rights debate.

Here is part of Goldwater's glossary of southern talk: Abode—wooden plank—

Ain't—sister of one of your parents.

Beckon—meat from a pig, often eaten with aigs for breakfast.

Bone-blessed event, i.e., "I was bone a southerner."

Braid—what you make to eat from.

Coarse—certainly.

Poet—to transfer a liquid, i.e., "poet from the pitcher to the glass."

Tarred—wear.

Yawl—mode of address used by N. Yawkers when living in the south.

Radar Ships Pulled

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada was advised by the United States that 29 U.S. navy radar picket ships would be withdrawn from service, Defence Minister Pearkes informed the Commons yesterday.

Mr. Pearkes said the ships did not come under jurisdiction of North American Air Defence Command and declined comment on reports that U.S. Air Force General Laurence Kuter, NORAD commander, objected to their withdrawal. Mr. Pearkes said withdrawal of the ships does not materially reduce the effectiveness of the DEW line system because the threat of hostile bombers appears to be decreasing.

Mr. Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, asked whether this decreasing threat doesn't make expenditures on the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile useless. Mr. Pearkes said the bomber threat is diminishing but has not ended.

Gagliardi 'Plasters Signs From Here to Eternity'

John Squire (CCF, Alberni) last night called Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi "the most sign-happy minister ever in B.C."

"And the most apologetic," quipped George Gregory (L, Victoria).

"You are plastering highway signs from here to eternity," Mr. Squire told the minister during legislative discussion of his department estimates. "Let's stop playing like children. These signs are nothing but a political gimmick."

Estimates for highway signs are up to $446,295, from $275,160 last year.

Mr. Squire referred to the blue and white "project" completed signs.

"There are none in my district," complained Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan), who lamented lack of road work in his, while, he said in Kamloops and around Kelowna there was nothing but blacktop.

"What's wrong with them?" Mr. Gagliardi asked about the signs.

"Hazards on the road,"

Report from the Buildings

chipped in Leo Nimsick (CCF, Cranbrook).

"To the CCF," retorted the minister. "After all, taxpayers want to know what is going on and we are always willing to tell them," Mr. Gagliardi said.

After many members put in personal plugs for more and better roads and bridges in their areas, the highways department's estimates of $85,390,111 were passed in the evening.

A bill introduced yesterday will give civil servants who retired after 10 years' service or more a supplementary monthly allowance.

Amounts are $4 a month for 20 to 25 years, $3 for 15 to 20 years and $2 for 10 to 15 years. A wife or widow will get half the bonus.

The bill also proposes a new death benefit plan, increases the maximum pension to $7,500 from $6,300, boosts the minimum to $35 a month for 15 years' service from $40 for 10 years and allows pension transfers from the civil service to federal or private firm plans.

A bill to protect B.C. archaeological and historic sites, especially Indian areas, was introduced by Provincial Secretary Black.

It provides for a maximum fine of $500, or six months in jail, for persons who destroy or desecrate any site or object. It also says Indian skeletal remains in the possession of private individuals must be turned over to a public institution designated by the government.

stitution designated by the government.

CCF leader Strachan charged the PGE railway extension from Vancouver to Squamish was "rushed through in the 1956 election year" at an extra expense of $500,000 to the taxpayers.

A private bill which its member-sponsor said would outlaw "political payola" chargeable against utility consumers was introduced by Gordon Dowling (CCF, Burnaby). Details were not available immediately.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes—and ships—and sailing
wax—of cabbages and kings."
By TOM TAYLOR

A NEWS item in the paper last Sunday said that scientists across the Atlantic were designing a bathyscaphe to snoop the bottom of Loch Ness and disgorge the celebrated monster of that area.

One hopes they fail. As far as we know this mysterious creature has harmed no one. Like our own Caddy, who seems to have retired on pension of late, all it ever does is come up for air occasionally; otherwise it minds its own business.

Mankind, however, was never very good at following suit.

Another legendary creature which eludes capture is the Abominable Snowman of the Asiatic high lands, about which we have heard so much in recent years. A hunt is on for him too; another hunt, that is.

One hopes that in this case also he will elude his would-be captors. What would they do with him anyway? Shoot him? Or shut him in a cage for the alleged improvement of human knowledge?

The term "him" is used advisedly. There are theories that the Snowmen of the Himalayas are "wild" men—presumably it is not a single hermit who is periodically reported—descendants of a tribe which was driven into the mountains 3,000 years ago. As with horses let loose beyond civilized boundaries, they became wild.

Who knows but what they were wise.

This is the lunik age, however. Every mystery must be tracked down and tabulated. The riddle of the unknown is at a discount. Soon there will be nothing on earth or in the sky which cannot be blueprinted.

One thing apparently has been cleared up. The Abominable Snowman—why "abominable," by the way?—is not a Russian. Recently a Soviet expedition ranged for nine months over the Pamirs, where sightings of the Snowman had been reported, but without success. "Ivanov" was the code name of the expedition.

"Farewell, you fascinating riddle," wrote the leader in his official account, "Farewell, inscrutable snowman. . . Perhaps thou art yet to be found, in the remotest mountains of Nepal. Perhaps."

It is to the Himalayas that Sir Edmund Hillary will shortly return, this time in an intensive search for the Snowman. Like previous Everest mountaineers Sir Edmund has an open mind on the subject. He has seen the large footprints in the Himalayan snows and he respects the opinion of the Sherpas.

They have no doubt. Folklore assures them that the Snowman, or Yeti as they call him, does exist. Tibetan lamas are reported to have knowledge of him. Ancient records tell of the "wild" man who inhabited the mountains, of a hirsute creature who stood on two legs and was of enormous strength.

So, like the Loch Ness monster, the Abominable Snowman remains to tantalize the enquiring scientific mind, which is always disturbed by things beyond rational explanation. The Snowman is strange, weird perhaps, he does not conform, he is beyond the scope of present analysis.

That means he must be traced to his lair, if possible, so that curiosity may be satisfied.

There being few wonders left, except the never-ending one of man's ingenuity to man, one hopes therefore that the Abominable Snowman is never caught. They might try to "civilize" him, and one is not too sure this is a fate that would give him pleasure.

Letter from London

Insecurity and Suspicion in NATO

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

THE rain in Spain seems to be falling mostly on Bonn these days. There is a European storm concerning the proposal to establish German bases in Spain. Denials and counter-denials are sandwiched between the knows and don't knows, and the crux of the situation is that a junior partner in NATO has been contemplating what a senior partner in the same firm did two years ago.

From it emerge the insecurity and suspicion which still bedevil European politics. We are back where we came in. Either we do not trust Germany, in which case she should be disarmed and expelled from NATO; or else we trust Germany and accept her as a NATO partner. At the moment it seems that we are trying to have it both ways.

The main expressions of horror concerning German inquiries about Spanish bases come from socialist leftwingers who got muddled up in the Spanish civil war. General Franco is a Fascist. He would not be there today had he not been helped by the German Nazis. Now the Germans want to get back to Spain, therefore Germany is Nazi. QED. The argument contains all the elements of emotional distortion.

Surely it may be demonstrated, with equal strength that General Franco was the arch-enemy of communism, that the Russians fought against him, and that therefore he is a surer bet in an anti-communist alliance than almost anyone in the world.

But, it is argued, General Franco is the sole surviving dictator in the Western world. He does not believe in freedom, he suppresses it. By stretching the arguments just a little bit we could argue that because the United States has bases there, therefore the United States is Fascist.

Bluntly, do you require references before you allow the gentleman who may save you from drowning to jump into the water?

As far as it is possible to obtain the facts the people who should have known about the German negotiations did, in fact, know about them. They were secret only in the sense that they were not generally known until the information leaked into the newspapers. There are other things known to NATO which are not known to everyone. The trouble started when everyone was contradicting everyone else in a vain attempt to preserve a secret they all knew about.

General Franco may not be a very desirable character, but his country has considerable strategic importance. At least we can be sure about his antipathy to communism. The United States has accepted him as a strategic necessity just as they accepted Russia as an ally in 1943.

Western Germany is at least as anti-communist as it has ever been and the fact that it cannot altogether escape its past is something which cannot be sidestepped. The implication of continuity is certainly there—but the short answer is that they tried France first and perhaps not surprisingly, France was less anxious to play host to an occupying power than the Spaniards who remembered only a friend in need.

If the dispute proves anything, it is only that European passions are very thinly buried—that Germany is still suspect, France nervous, and Spain consistent. British indifference is interpreted as the implied acceptance of General Franco and all his ways.

The explanation is really much more simple. Spain is one of the few countries in Europe where military Germans are not wholly unwelcome. Germany has to find training areas outside its own territory. There is hope that the presence of Americans, the growing tourist traffic, the establishment of new bases with a wholly beneficial effect on the local economy will soon make General Franco more amenable to world opinion. After all, he has said nothing about Gibraltar for at least three years, and there is hope that with a change of heart Spain may become a useful addition to NATO and so close the ranks of the Western world.

Necessity provides strange bedfellows. If we can ally with Russia in 1943 it should not be too difficult to ally with Spain in 1963. If Germany is worthy of NATO she should be where NATO is, and before this rumour broke out America made it clear that although Spain was not in NATO the American bases in Spain were really NATO bases. Germany argues that any bases she may acquire in Spain will be the same.

Bluntly, emotional reaction seems to have conquered common sense.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

IN a hotel suite half a dozen men invited to a formal banquet that called for black tie and tuxedo were struggling into the shirts, ties, tape-striped trousers and other fandangoes of the cult of evening dress. Only one of the six had worn his outfit more than twice in the past year. He was one of those cheerful souls who has to be master of ceremonies at various service club and similar social evening functions, and at conventions. To him, evening dress is as natural a part of the routine of the 24-hour day as are pyjamas at night, and an old sweater in the morning to put out the ash cans. He chucks the black garments on without a qualm, and ties a batwing with a mere flip of his fingers.

The rest of us were grunting and protesting as we stuck in studs, squeezed feet into unaccustomed black shoes, and tangled with our ties.

"Aw," said the old pro, "what's the matter with you amateur Beau Brummels? Just haul the stuff on and let it go at that. Don't you realize that there will be only one person looking at you tonight? Only one person out of the whole crowd of three hundred?"

"Who's that?" we asked.

"Yourself," said he.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

A young mother paying a visit to her doctor made no attempt to restrain her 5-year-old son who was ransacking an adjoining treatment room. But finally an extraloud clatter of bottles did prompt her to say "I hope, doctor, you don't mind Billy being in your examining room."

"No," said the doctor calmly. "He'll be quiet in a moment when he gets to the poisons."

Researchers, after exhaustive study, report that the reason why so many married women hold jobs is that they want money. Which may also be the reason why researchers carry on exhaustive studies.

A teacher asked in an examination, "In the fall, why do wild geese fly south?"

In seven words, a schoolboy solved one of nature's mysteries that has baffled water fowl experts since they were recognized as experts. His answer was, "Because it is too far to walk."

The Bomarc Program

THE biggest gamble facing the federal government these days is in connection with defence. No matter what weapons are chosen the element of chance is always present. They may prove to be the right weapons, or they may not. Every allied government is affected by this dilemma, and it is costly as well as perplexing. There are also many conflicting opinions as there are weapons.

The opposition in Ottawa has no worries. It can indulge in criticism without responsibility. Anything the government does or does not do is sure to draw its fire. Much of the attack directed against the Bomarc program can therefore be discounted. Were the Liberals in office they too would have to plump for a defensive instrument in liaison with the U.S.A. They are perhaps lucky to have been turned out of office when they were, for the complexity of weapon and choice has grown immensely during the last two years.

The Bomarc missile is suffering growing pains—its tests have not yet been fully successful—and there is a cry for Canada to stop preparing the two sites for its use in this country. The same critics would assail the government did it wait until the Bomarc was available for installation; then they would say the government should have been ready. The Diefenbaker regime cannot win in the eyes of Liberal and CCF parliamentary groups.

The Bomarc program is a two-way affair. It is part of the U.S.A.'s own defensive set-up, and America is spending nearly half-a-billion dollars this year on its development. The U.S.A. is rich but it does not idly throw such a large sum away. Faith in the Bomarc must be there. In any case costly experiment is unavoidable in this age of nuclear weapons.

Canada's share of the expense cannot be accounted large. The U.S.A. will provide the Bomarc missiles and launching equipment for the Canadian stations; this country foots the bill for preparing the sites, estimated at $15,000,000. This represents 1 per cent of the defence budget, scarcely enough to set Parliament alight—were party gain not put before national interest.

Canada will also underwrite the electronic control system for the operation of its two Bomarc stations, amounting to some $100,000,000. This expenditure will not occur however until the missiles are proved and ready, by which time presumably even opposition members would not dissent. Meanwhile they are, as Defence Minister Peckers put it, losing a sense of proportion.

Rich Man's Justice

CANADA has some distance to travel yet before it can be said with complete truth that justice is always dispensed without regard for a man's station in life. Only a few days ago Mr. Justice Ruttan, addressing a meeting in Victoria, commented on the infliction of prison terms in cases of default of payment of fines for various offences, as is the practice of the courts throughout Canada in conformity with the statutes of the country. The judge observed, as others have done before him, that imprisonment in such cases was the penalty for not having money rather than for the commission of the offence of which the accused had been convicted.

Simple examples of this inequality of justice are to be found almost daily in the proceedings of the lower courts. But an even more glaring illustration of the existence of one law for the rich and another for the poor comes from Toronto, provided by a notorious series of charges of income tax evasion. Three men, all prominent citizens and one of them a former member of the Ontario legislature, were fined sums ranging as high as $178,000 and each approximating the amount of tax evaded. They were allowed a month in which to raise the fines, and because they were able to do so they escaped being sent to prison. In each case the offence was in effect that of stealing money from the nation.

In the same court two immigrant girls who pleaded guilty to shoplifting goods valued at $175 received sentences in sharp contrast to those passed upon the wealthy swindlers of the Crown. The two girls were not represented in court by lawyers. They were first offenders and all the articles they had stolen were recovered. They were sentenced, without the option of a fine, to 30 days' imprisonment.

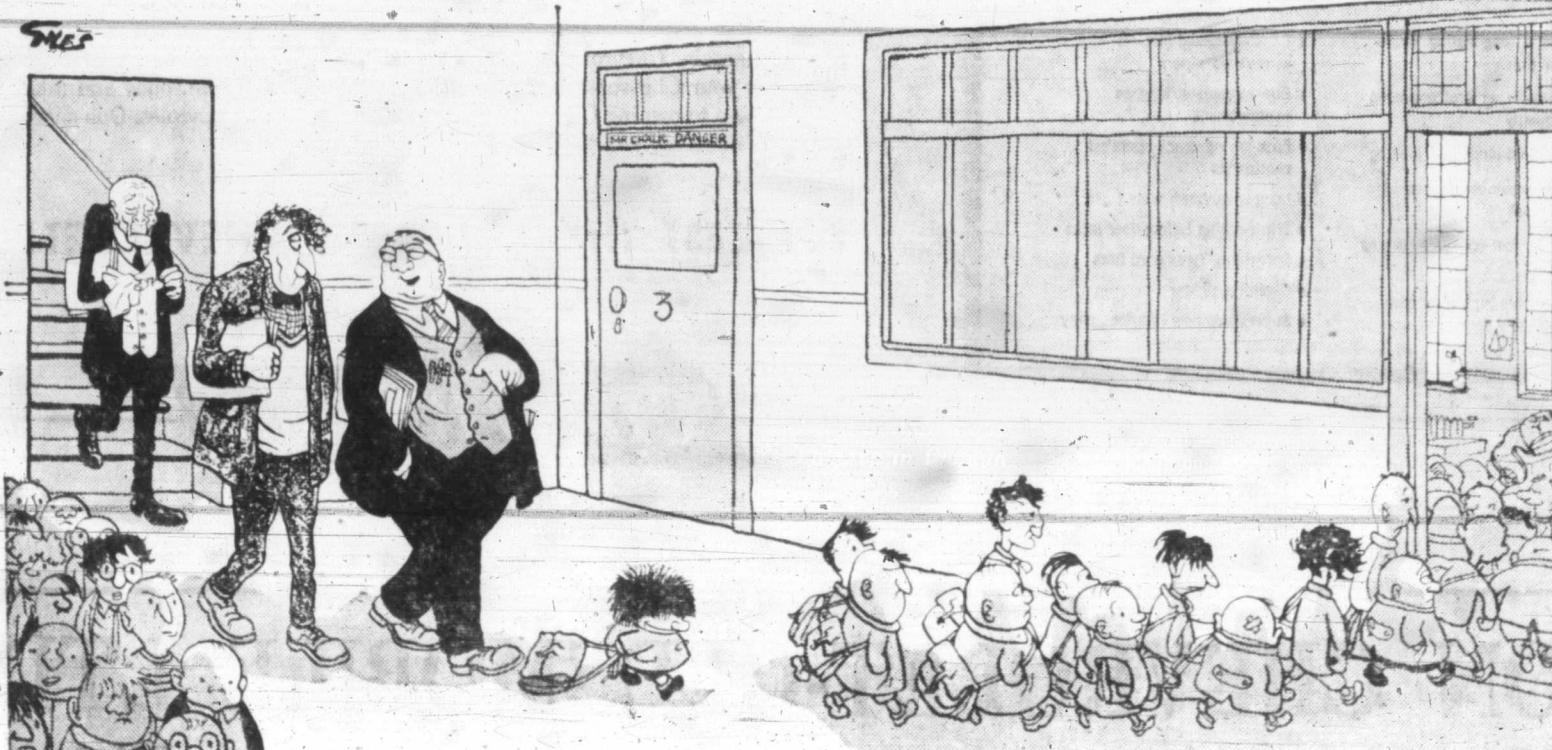

Court sentences are imposed partly as punishment, partly as a deterrent to others. What deterrent to crime in general can there be under such a system? The jailing of two friendless girls for theft from a store may stop someone else from trying the same thing. But what effective deterrent is there in a penal system which allows two men who have criminally withheld huge sums from the treasury to go free for the sole reason that they possess enough money to pay large fines? There is indeed an element of gambling in this computation of fines on what amounts to double-or-nothing odds which might excite unscrupulous persons to attempt to cheat the Crown. But what grates most is the establishment of what may best be described as rich man's justice.

Dramatic Rescue

A CHANGE from the bickering of international disagreement was the real-life drama of four Russian soldiers picked alive this week from a landing barge which had been driven by storms from the Kurile Islands to within 1,000 miles of Midway Island. On the point of collapse from hunger and thirst after their stores had been consumed, the casta-ways who had no means of communication were sighted by aircraft from the U.S. naval carrier Kearsarge drifting out of sight of all land and rescued by helicopter just in time. They apparently had been engaged in training exercises near the Kuriles, but their barge ran for 1,020 miles before a raging storm. Here is one international incident which needs no apology.

Patients Are People, Not Some Disease!

Medical Students Get New Slant on Things

VANCOUVER (CP)—Freshman medical students at UBC have been taking part in experimental courses aimed at turning out doctors with warm understanding rather than chilling callousness.

The novel course was disclosed by Dean J. F. McCreary of the university medical faculty.

RESULTS SOON

Started in 1957, its results may be known in a few months when identical questionnaires to B.C. students and those at the University of Saskatchewan, where no similar program is given, will be examined.

RATHER NORMAL

"We have been concerned with the possibility that we are teaching students so much detail about scientific aspects of disease that they look at patients as a disembodied disease," said Dr. McCreary, "rather than as a usually normal person with normal fears, problems and tensions."

"Just as a student must learn normal anatomy, physiology and biochemistry before he can be taught the abnormal," he said.

Poor Markets Halt Whalers

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia whaling fleet will not go out this year because of poor world markets for its products, President J. M. Buchanan of British Columbia Packers announced Tuesday.

U.S. Navy Saves Lost Russians

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four young Russian soldiers were rescued from the storm-swept Pacific by a U.S. helicopter Sunday after drifting helplessly for 49 days in a small landing craft, the navy disclosed Tuesday.

The men were "emaciated and malnourished" but in good spirits.

They were on manoeuvres north of Japan when their 50-foot boat was crippled by a storm.

They had drifted 1,020 miles when a lookout aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Kearsage spotted them in fading twilight. The helicopter picked them up 1,000 miles west-northwest of Midway Island.

During their seven-week ordeal, the four Russians had only three cans of beef, a loaf of bread and what water they could gather from rainfall. They were out of both food and water when rescued.

Each lost 35 to 40 pounds. The carrier's Skipper, Capt. Robert Townsend, said they were able to walk and co-operated eagerly in their rescue.

Townsend also said he learned the Russians three times had sighted ships in the distance. But they had no way of communicating with the vessels and their small craft apparently could not be seen in the sea's deep troughs.

When the carrier's lookout spotted them, the men were huddled on the upper deck of their landing craft. The lower deck was flooded with two to three feet of water.

Red China A-Test March 28?

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—An Indian legislator said Tuesday Communist China plans to conduct a Soviet-assisted atomic bomb test close to India's frontier March 28.

Dr. Raghuvira, who represents Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party in the Upper House of parliament, said Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai personally chose the date of the explosion so that he could speak more forcibly to Nehru in their discussions here next month.

Wide Control of Retailers Proposed in Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan's CCF government will give sweeping control of retail practices through a licensing system if a bill introduced in the legislature Tuesday is proclaimed.

The bill gives the government power to make regulations "prohibiting retailers from doing or carrying on acts or practices considered detrimental to retailers or any other class of persons or to the public."

Apparently aimed at trading stamps, although they are not specifically mentioned, the bill will not come into effect until proclaimed by the lieutenant-governor.

The throne speech promised legislation to prohibit "questionable retail practices."

Under the bill no one can carry on business as a retailer without a licence issued under the act.

The licence may be revoked if the provincial secretary is satisfied the retailer has violated the act.

Any decision of the provincial secretary will be subject to appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench, ruling of which will be final.

If requested, the provincial secretary must appoint an advisory board to hear submissions relating to refusal, granting or cancellation of licences.

Winter Medal Golf Windup At Uplands Course Sunday

By HARRY YOUNG

Uplands Sunday will be the venue of the final winter medal competition of the season. Leading the field is Colwood's Laurie Kerr with 147, and two strokes behind him is his clubmate, Bill McColl. In third place at 150 is George Bigelow.

Because courses were out of play last weekend, some players may not have had an opportunity of making their entries for the medal, but they still have a chance. If they have not placed their names on the list at their club they may phone secretary Leo Derman at EV 3-6451. He intends making the draw Thursday afternoon.

After the conclusion of the winter medal there will be time for just one more button match before the opening of the tournament season.

On Sunday, March 20, holders Frank Scroggs and Bob Morrison of Uplands will meet George Bigelow and Laurie Carroll of Victoria.

Then on Sunday, March 27, the Colwood club hosts the qualifying round of the Island Open Match Play Championship.

Entry forms for this competition, limited to 120 players, will be available next Tuesday, and entries will be accepted on a first-come basis. The competition is open to Island professionals and all amateurs with duly accredited with B.C. Golf Association handicaps.

MASTERS FILM

Victoria golfing enthusiasts have a chance during the next three evenings of seeing the 90-minute film of the 1959 Masters Tournament at Augusta, won in a thrilling finish by Art Wall.

The film will be on view at Royal Colwood this evening at 8 p.m. and then at Uplands on Thursday at 7 p.m. and George Vale on Friday at 8 p.m.

Colwood member George Goodwin is to be congratulated on bringing this film to the city, because there is a distinct dearth of good golfing films now that the B.C. Liquor Control Board has banned the showing of the Canadian Open Gold Cup films in this province simply because they are sponsored by a firm that distills whisky.

Fortunately the U.S. film belongs to an insurance company so that the sticky old LCB has no jurisdiction.

HAWKSHAW TAKES STICK

After being bogged down since last summer, the Challenge Walking Stick match at the Victoria club is back again in full swing. In the initial match E. C. D. Hawkshaw beat Jack Wintermute, and the new holder has since defended the stick successfully, beating Harold Postbrooke and then retaining the trophy in a match with Ernie Brown that finished all square.

BIG EAGLE

Victoria Golf Club was host Sunday to quite a few golfers from other clubs, when it was the only course in the area free from that dreadful white stuff, known in other parts of the world as snow.

Among them was Dr. Roger Ross, the Colwood champion, who showed some of the locals a thing or two by carding a sub-par 67, including an unusual eagle at the 250-yard 10th hole. Using a wedge for his second shot he planted the ball right into the cup without a bounce.

More Than 1,000 Fans Attend Lions' Lessons

VANCOUVER (CP)—The teacher stood at the front of the crowded classroom and said:

"This is the field. It's 110 yards long and 65 yards wide. The game is played by 12 men who have three downs to gain 10 yards."

The teacher was Wayne Robinson, head coach of the British Columbia Lions football team.

In the classroom at Burnaby Central High School were 1,032 persons attending the first-ever night school course for football spectators.

The students paid $2.50 for the four-night course, which began Monday night, or $1 for the single session. The classes are conducted by the Western Interprovincial Football Union club in conjunction with the suburban Burnaby night school.

One of the highlights of the first class was a display of equipment with Lion end Bruce Claridge acting as model. Film clips of common rule violations were shown to demonstrate graphically what constituted a penalty. Rule changes were explained and the funda-mentals of the game outlined in the first 1½-hour session.

Next week the class will go into more intricate details.

Robinson, asked later if he thought the classes might be compounding his own difficulties with the armchair quarterback, said:

"I don't think they're going to stop criticisms of the coach and the team, but they'll be better founded in their criticisms. A lot of the fun of enjoying football is in rehashing it after the game and I think these people are going to be more capable to make intelligent analysis of the strategy used."

New Lows

Recorded At New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market suffered another sinking spell—the seventh in a row—with all major industrial categories participating in the downrush.

The list spent only a small part of the afternoon on the upside, then went into a rapid decline in late trading.

The industrial stock average closed at a new low since Feb. 19, 1959. Losses of more than 3 in Du Pont, and a point or more in Texaco, American Tobacco, General Electric and Allied Chemical were chiefly responsible for the decline.

Slump in Ford

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market continued to take a beating as banks, motors and steel set the industrial index back more than four points for the second time in as many days.

Ford Motor of Canada took the biggest industrial loss, down 12 points at 140. Its U.S. counterpart, Ford Motor, lost three points at 67. Royal Bank of Canada was off 2½ and Bank of Montreal fell 2½.

Winners were few and far between. Canadian Westinghouse went up one point, Sun Life ½ and Dominion Stores ½.

Mines continued lower. Falconbridge was down ½ at 28½ and Noranda slipped ½ at 40½. Senior uranium was stronger. Allgon gained 30 cents at $9.90. Gunar increased five cents and Consolidated Denison lost five cents.

Bank Stocks Dip

Banks and papers led the losers dropping up to 2½ points. Papers saw Fraser down ½ at 25½, B.C. Forest ½ at 12½, Consolidated ½ at 37½ and Price ½ at 41.

Asbestos gained ½ at 23 in base metals, International Nickel fell ½ at 92 and Aluminum dropped ½ at 28½. Gatuineau fell ½ at 34 in utilities and B.C. Power declined ½ at 32.

Steel of Canada fell 2 at 73 and Canada Iron ½ at 21½. Imperial Oil was down 1 at 30½ and International Petroleum ½ at 42½.

Both Interprovincial and TransCanada fell ½ at 54½ and 20 respectively in pipelines.

Montreal Bonds

MONTREAL (CP)—Trading was light in corporate issues on the Montreal bond market but recent issues showed a firmer tone. The new Bell was quoted at 99½ to par ½.

Short-term Canadas were better by a nickel and the long-improved by ½. Provincials were quiet.

Grain Market

WINNIPEG (CP)—Flax trade was moderately active with prices showing firmness. Some buying of Canadian flax was prompted by advances in European linseed oil prices, and a small export business worked to the continent.

A fall strike in Argentina, which halted exports of Argentine linseed oil, also was a factor in the broader interest shown in Canadian flax.

Health Minister:

State Medicine After Insurance

OTTAWA (CP)—A full-scale state medicine program should not be considered until the hospital insurance plan is fully developed, Health Minister Monteith said Tuesday.

He told the Commons estimates committee that hospital out-patient and home-care services should be expanded in the present federal-provincial program and state medicine—government-sponsored medical care insurance—kept in "proper perspective."

The present hospital insurance program, in effect in nine of the 10 provinces, was still "far from complete."

Unique Festival Unusual, Colorful

By BERT BINNY

The unique attraction about the program of the Royal Norway Festival, heard last night at the Royal Theatre, lies in the fact that many of the items involve activities which few—if any—other people attempt.

For instance, the "lur," traditional musical instrument of the Norwegian sheep herders, was introduced by Olav Snorheim. Like a fiddle, there were like the fiddles to which we are accustomed: they have five extra strings.

And there was an amazingly vigorous performance of the "Halling," a native dance which has to be seen to be appreciated.

Add to these more ordinary but still lovely items by such as lyric soprano Erna Skaug, Torvald Maurstad, Orloff and Dorothe-Oiseth, Brit and Aksel Stokke and there is a program full of interest, color and vitality.

Show Business

By Dick Williams

Sir Carol Reed, the highly-regarded British director, is as well known for his absent-mindedness as for his exceptional films. Anyone who has worked with him has a new story to tell on Sir Carol. Here are a couple, relayed to me by stars who have appeared in his pictures:

While directing "Outcast of the Islands" in the South Pacific, Sir Carol was filming one sequence in a swamp. The director was up to his waist in the muck when someone shouted, "Look out for your watch."

"Thank you," said the director, and he yanked off his expensive timepiece and put it in his pocket, which was completely under the mud!

More recently, Sir Carol was directing Alec Guinness in "Our Man in Havana" at a London studio. One morning he walked onto the set and peered through the camera, while the cast and crew stared back in bewilderment.

Sir Carol then realized he was looking at Elizabeth Taylor, Montgomery Clift and Katharine Hepburn in a scene for "Suddenly, Last Summer." In an embarrassing silence he walked off to his own set.

Plungers, Dawdlers, Cyclists, Buses, Parents! 'Amazed More Not Killed'

Crosswalk plungers, dawdling schoolchildren, unhelmeted motorcyclists, Victoria buses and thoughtless parents came in for criticism yesterday at a Victoria-Esquamalt health board meeting.

The board recommended to city council that buses should be required to have rear-view mirrors and turn signals mounted on both sides, and to the provincial poison control organization that a poison safety week should be established in B.C.

Discussion stemmed from accident statistics and a recent case of a motorcycle being trapped between the curb and a turning bus.

"It would be a big step forward if everyone on a two-wheeled vehicle in B.C. was compelled to wear a helmet," health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy suggested.

"I notice in Vancouver every bus has a blinker light near the driver on both sides," said chairman Richard Reeve. "If it's good in Vancouver, it would be good here."

Turning to poisoning cases, the board agreed more promotional work should be done.

"In 90 per cent of cases it's straight neglect," said Coun. G. K. Sammon of Esquamalt. "Keeping aspirins and so forth within children's reach, and detergents and such under the sink."

And, elsewhere on the safety scene, Dr. Mahaffy found schoolchildren in crosswalks "very, very careless—they seem to think, 'We'll take our time and do as we like. You don't dare touch us in a crosswalk'."

Mr. Reeve suggested they were just imitating their parents.

"I'm amazed sometimes that more people aren't killed. Because the law says motorists shall stop when a crosswalk is occupied, people believe a two-ton automobile will stop in three feet and so they run—I've seen them run—into the pedestrian lane."

Wanted in City Policemen

It's Brain Not Brawn

Toronto may hold out for king-sized policemen; Winnipeg may yearn for a more compact constable; but two of Greater Victoria's police chiefs maintain that it's brain not brawn they look for when they hire a policeman.

It all began yesterday when Winnipeg's Chief Robert Taft said he's planning to hire shorter policemen because cars are getting smaller and lower. He wants his policemen to look "like ordinary, successful business men or tradesmen."

But not Magistrate C. O. Bick of Toronto.

"We like to see a policeman on the street who looks like he can take care of himself," he said.

"If you have pipsqueaks pumping out of cars the people won't fear them. There will just be an increasing number of assaults on police officers," he said.

As far as Chiefs Gilbert Stancombe of Esquamalt and W. A. Pearson of Saanich are concerned, it's brain, not brawn, that matters.

"There's a growing trend to recognition of shorter men in police work," said Chief Stancombe, who declined to give his own height but looks to be six feet tall. "Our commission doesn't hire on size, but on aptitude."

"Appearance, intelligence, and manners with the public are the basic factors in selecting our men," said Chief Pearson, five feet nine inches.

"Ours is becoming a more and more exacting profession, and I can see the time ahead when the public will recognize it as such, and not just as an outlet for big, ungainly men."

HELMUT GINTAUT

Since Friday

Oak Bay Builder Missing

Vancouver Island and mainland police are looking for an Oak Bay building contractor missing since last Friday on a business trip to Vancouver.

Helmut Gintaut, 28, of the Valrose Apartments, 2358 Esplanade, left home Friday in his panel pickup truck, intending to return Saturday.

The vehicle and Gintaut's wallet, containing his papers but no money, were found aboard a Nanaimo-Vancouver ferry Saturday night at Nanaimo.

Last person known to have seen him was a friend, Bert Chudyk of Phyllis Street.

Gintaut is about five feet 11 inches tall, weighing 185 pounds, with short, curly blond hair. When he left home he was wearing a red and black checked shirt, a fawn car coat, brown trousers and oxfords.

Battered Sailor 'Taken for Ride'

A battered sailor left HMCS Naden Hospital yesterday after a week's treatment and told police he had been "taken for a ride" in Victoria, before being thrown from a car on Hillside Avenue.

LS Richard Walter Colquhoun, 1240 Newport, said he was waiting for a bus in civilian clothes at Douglas and Yates about midnight last Tuesday, when a man pulled up and offered him a ride.

Soon another man appeared from the back seat and grabbed him around the neck so fiercely that he passed out, Colquhoun said.

When he came to, about 1 a.m., he was thrown from the car on Hillside near Shelbourne. He had been beaten in the face but had not been robbed. The sailor went to the home of a friend who drove him to hospital.

He told police he didn't know the men who attacked him and said he had not been in any trouble.

15 Active TB Cases Found in Chest Survey

Trapping Ban Recommended

Public works committee yesterday recommended to city council the passage of a bylaw prohibiting trapping at Beaver and Elk Lakes. The area used to be a game reserve, but the reserve was lifted when Saanich prohibited shooting.

Fifteen new active cases of tuberculosis have been discovered as the result of Operation Doorstep in which 18,202 X-ray pictures were taken in downtown Victoria, Esquamalt health board was informed yesterday.

In addition, B.C. Tuberculosis Society program director D. A. Geeke said, further diagnostic work is proceeding in 45 cases, and five persons were found to have other chest infections, two of them lung cancer.

Of the 15 definite tuberculosis cases, he said, 14 were minimal. "This is one of the basic reasons for surveys of this type. We found these cases in the early stages, and four or five of the people won't even have to leave work."

Health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy told the board tuberculosis testing of all junior high school students is planned in May. Senior high school students have already been tested.

Gagliardi to Ponder Plan

Road to Tofino Open All Hours?

It's the Flowers

City Just a Bit Of Olde Mexico

Men in broad sombreros and tight trousers and women in colorful costume brought a touch of old Mexico to Victoria yesterday.

They in turn found something here to remind them of home.

"As soon as I saw the flowers," said Roberto Rodriguez, leader of the group, "I thought we were in Mexico."

The group is made up of singers, dancers and musicians making a 10-day tour of Western Canada for the Mexican government department of tourism. They were flown to Vancouver by Canadian Pacific Airlines.

They will perform songs and dances of Mexico old and new at a local department store today and make a round of travel agencies.

"The entertainers are known throughout Mexico as the Harmony Group."

For Mr. Rodriguez this is the second trip to B.C. in six weeks. "We hope," he said, "that many more British Columbians will fly CPA to Mexico in the future."

Don't Stop Tourists Squire Asks

Highways Minister Gagliardi yesterday promised to give consideration to a plan which would open the Alberni-Tofino road to tourists at all hours during June, July and August.

The plan was proposed by John Squire (CCF, Alberni) who said there are going to be thousands of tourists travel that road this summer and "I don't want to see them backed up outside steel gates waiting for a company official to unlock the gate . . . like something out of the days of King Arthur."

The road is now closed to the public between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. when logging trucks operate on it. The road was built by MacMillan and Bloedel and Powell River at the Sproat Lake end, the government in the centre, and B.C. Forest Products at the Tofino end.

Mr. Squire's plan is to have the logging companies move their operations away from the road in the summer months . . . "they have hundreds of thousands of acres they can log away from the road . . . The company (MacMillan and Bloedel) doesn't need to be on that road all year round."

Mr. Squire complained that government graders are keeping the road graded for the logging companies.

"This road belongs to us. Either it does, or you take those graders off," Mr. Squire demanded. Mr. Gagliardi said he had written to MacMillan and Bloedel and Powell River and the company "wrote back and said it must log in that area in the summer months."

"We are still negotiating with the company and will continue to do so," he said. "Until the issue is clarified the road will be closed at those times."

"Just because the company submits a plan, it doesn't mean that is the only place it can cut," Mr. Squire pointed out.

Oak Bay's Hawes Takes Issue With Critics of TV Teaching

Coun. Fred Hawes of Oak Bay took issue this week with the original proposal of lessons broadcast over a closed circuit, trustees agreed to take another look at the counter-proposal involving use of the closed circuit scheme in the local TV station.

Coun. Hawes said if TV lessons are as good as the board claims, there should be no difficulty in obtaining money for the closed circuit scheme in 1961 or 1962.

Coun. Hawes said "to get this thing on the road" he would recommend to Oak Bay council that a reduced budget be approved for open circuit broadcasts over CHEKTV.

After lengthy explanation of Gough said possibly two more teachers would be needed to prepare lessons for broadcast in order to beat the problem of time wasted in travel back and forth between school and TV station.

He said a study will also be made of the possibility of using CHEKTV remote facilities to beam a broadcast from a studio located in S. J. Willis Junior High to the station for re-broadcast. He indicated the earliest broadcasts could start was late September.

Board chairman W. C. Gelling said a firm alternative proposal would be presented to the four councils in the next few days.

Ready by Autumn

$250,000 Block Set For Varsity Campus

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant last night confirmed that construction of a $250,000 classroom and office building will begin soon on the Lansdowne campus of Victoria University.

He said, tenders will be called as soon as possible to ensure the new building is completed by September, to accommodate an expected influx of some 1,300 students at the start of the fall term.

The move replaces a plan, announced earlier by principal Dr. W. H. Hickman, to erect temporary buildings on the campus for overflow students this fall.

The new building of concrete blocks will include eight classrooms, a book store and some 30 offices. It is to be located just east of the present Ewing building.

Mr. Chant said provincial government architects now are working on plans for the addition. He said the government has already voted the first $500,000 instalment of the promised $2,500,000 matching grant towards the university building fund. Some of this money would be used for the new building.

The present enrolment of 1,061 is straining facilities at Victoria University to the limit. Dr. Hickman said a few months ago that temporary buildings appeared to be the only answer to overcrowding.

He said enrolment for the fall term is expected to top 1,300 and in five years may reach as high as 5,000.

The building fund drive now under way has set its goal at $2,500,000 and the government will put up a matching dollar grant for a multi-million dollar expansion into a first-rate liberal arts university.

Vote Asked For Wives

A group known as the Voters' Rights Committee of B.C. has sent a letter to provincial MLAs asking for a change in the Municipal Act to enable wives of purchasers under the Veterans' Land Act to vote on money bylaws.

Mrs. Mira V. Yarwood, 3844 Merriman Drive, spokesman for the group, said in the letter that the new committee is continuing the program which was started in 1954 by the Saanich Voters' Association.

Witness Testifies:

Scott Was Away When Mink Left

A prosecution witness yesterday told a Victoria Assize Court jury that his employer, William A. Scott, was away from his Broad Street second-hand store when a stolen mink wrap was left there.

The statement came from part-time painter second-hand store clerk Clayton James Rooney, whose testimony filled most of the afternoon session of the first day of Mr. Scott's trial on a charge of possession of stolen goods.

FIVE MONTHS

His evidence substantiated that of Jonathan C. M. Kirk, who is currently serving a five-month jail sentence for theft of the $825 mink stole from the Hudson's Bay Company last Nov. 25.

Kirk, who was brought here to testify for the crown, said he had not seen Scott up to the time he was arrested.

BARELY AUDIBLE

Rooney, who several times tried the patience of Justice T. W. Brown by speaking in a barely audible voice, said he was working at Broad Street Trading & Pawnbroking Co. one day last November when a man he later identified as Kirk entered the store carrying a shopping bag and asked for Mr. Scott.

LOAN UNLIKELY

He first told the court that Kirk left the shopping bag, which contained a fur stole, in return for a $5 loan, but later said it was unlikely he had extended a loan on the garment.

He said at one point that Kirk then left the bag in the store, but later said he took the bag out with him only to return with it later.

Asked by assistant prosecutor Louis Lindholm if Kirk had demanded money for the contents of the bag, Rooney replied: "I disremember on that one."

Replying to a question on whether he gave Kirk any money, he said: "I gave him $5 at least."

SAME PERIOD

Under cross-examination by senior defence counsel Joseph McKenna, Rooney said, referring to the same period, "he (Kirk) got no loan that day."

He told the court he made no immediate record of the fact the fur garment was in the store and that he only informed the proprietor of its presence just before closing time.

CARE DENIED

He denied he had recently undergone treatment at the observation ward of Royal Jubilee Hospital or had been under the care of a city psychiatrist.

Mr. McKenna later asked: "Is it true that on the weekend of Feb. 28 you went out on a bender?"

"Oh, I don't think so," Rooney replied, "my system wouldn't stand it."

CO-OPERATIVE

Earlier in the trial a Hudson's Bay Company investigator, Harry Gordon Mills, said Scott had always been co-operative during investigations of stolen merchandise.

Delivering the usual end-of-day instructions to the jury, Mr. Justice Brown referred to the "tedium" to which jurors had been subjected.

The trial continues today.

'New Bridge for Goodness Sake' Bruch's Appeal for Metchosin

Herbert Bruch (SC, Esquamalt) yesterday appealed to Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi to "for goodness sake build us a new bridge at Metchosin."

He said the bridge was dangerous and that a lot of traffic used it.

Mr. Bruch also asked for new bridges on Atkins Road and at Goldstream Park.

"It's fine and dandy to go into rural areas and build roads all over God's green acres, but let's not forget the populated areas," he told the minister.

"We on Vancouver Island have almost one-fifth the population and could use a little more consideration than we Cowichan Lake, are getting at the present time," he said.

He asked the minister to initiate a survey with a view to connecting logging roads so the public could get into the Nitinat region behind Cowichan Lake.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I could have kissed you when I read that letter from the woman whose husband made a joke of menopause and said she was just faking to get sympathy.

I am married to the same kind of morose. When I saw your wonderful answer to the ignorant junkhead I cut it out and put it right on the plate with my husband's chopped liver.

For the past two years I've been experiencing hot flashes and sinking spells. I'd say to Harry "Open the window. I feel I'm passing out." (Hot flashes can give a person the sensation of burning up.) Ten minutes later I'd say "Harry, I'm freezing. Close the window." He'd accuse me of imagining things and then hint that I was off my rocker. I'd get so mad at him my blood pressure would shoot up 50 points.

Almost every day you have something in your column that hits close to home, either for me or someone I know. This menopause letter was a bull's eye and I want to thank you. —PAST 45.

Dear Past: Many women in your age group have written to express dismay with husbands who don't have the foggiest notion of what menopause is all about.

The combination of an enlightened husband and good medical advice can perform miracles during this transition.

Crudity on the Phone

Dear Ann Landers: Our 16-year-old daughter is sweet on a boy who comes from a nice family but acts as if he grew up in the back alley.

He always wears skin-tight jeans, no belt, and walks around with his thumbs hooked in his pockets. I've never seen him when he didn't have a cigarette dangling from his mouth, and his eyes half-closed from the smoke.

Our biggest complaint is that he runs to answer our phone whenever he's in the house. He says "City morgue," "Jake's Second Hand Furniture" or "Tillie's House of Pleasure."

He thinks this is funny—I think it's crude.

We don't want to bar him from our home because we had experience with forbidden fruit when our eldest daughter married a bum just to show us. What shall we do?—MOM AND DAD.

Dear M and D: Order your daughter to inform the smart aleck that he's not to answer the phone in your home again. If he insists, don't hesitate to deal directly with the clown—in a very straightforward manner.

Show Me the Quote

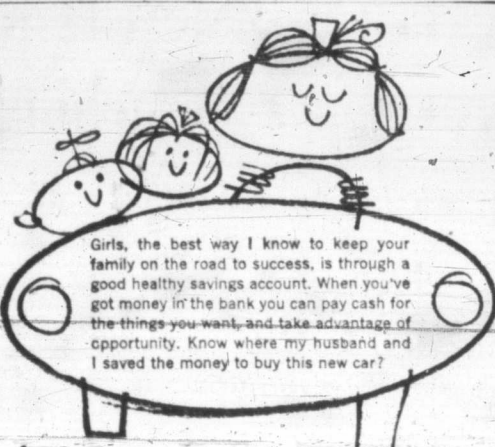

Dear Ann Landers: I am disgusted with you. The very idea of making the statement "All men are brothers in the family of God." And then you have the nerve to say it came from the scriptures. This would make Al Capone and Dwight Moody brothers. Some of you people who write for the press don't care who you make brothers so long as you get paid for it.—L. J.

Dear L. J.: If you can show me that quote in my column I

Time Important Factor Preparing Chinese Food

By ELIZABETH BINKS

Of all the ethnic groups in Canada the Chinese is the most closely-knit.

The Chinese have earned their livelihood simply by preserving their national identity. Their communities are tourist attractions in every major city.

Chinese food is well known to most Canadians over the age of 16.

SPROUTS SPROUTED
Alert food manufacturers here have brought chicken chow mein, chop suey and bean sprouts into hundreds of homes in the form of instant or canned goods.

A Ukrainian housewife I talked to confessed her family eats little Canadian food but enjoys Chinese food "at least once a week."

The Chinese tradition is one which seems pretty well unsalable. In the confusion of cultures which add up to Canadian culture, it is likely to remain a separate entity.

Or so I thought... until I talked to Canadian-born Mrs. Jean Lumb, president of Toronto's Chinese Women's Association and mother of six children from kindergarten to university age.

MOVING OUT
"There is a new generation of Chinese in Canada now," she told me. "They are moving out of Chinatown and developing new habits in their new environments."

"The food is changing — though very gradually. In my own family we always eat a Canadian breakfast; often have roast beef on Sundays and Canadian-type snacks in between meals."

Western influence has produced Chinese pastries and cookies, unheard of in Hong Kong.

To this idea the Chinese have added their own distinctive flavors — less sweet than Western, according to Mrs. Lumb, but to my mind far sweeter than any Canadian pastries I have ever tasted.

FORTUNE COOKIES
Some examples: noodle cakes, fried until puffy and mixed with a sugar syrup... peanut chews, a mixture of chopped peanuts, sesame seed, ginger and syrup... custard tarts... fortune cookies.

The Chinese celebrate Canadian Christmas and New Year's more elaborately than their own New Year's festival Jan. 28; they enjoy a Thanks.

CHRIST CHURCH

Christ Church Cathedral Women's Parish Guild are holding a donation tea Friday, March 11, when wool and material for sewing in preparation for the annual garden party in July will be gratefully accepted. Business meeting will start at 2:30 p.m. followed by the tea at 3:30 p.m.

With a quick hand, Mrs. Jean Lumb dishes out the chop suey. Her family's been waiting long enough for dinner. But though it takes longer to prepare a meal Chinese style, the Lumb-family agree it's well worth the result.

giving turkey like most families — though with a rice dressing.

Mrs. Lumb considers an average Chinese meal "more substantial and easier to prepare" than Canadian-type food. "I've found it more economical too," she added and pointed to the bowl of egg drop soup in front of us.

"That's made from a chicken or pork broth base," she said. "You just add peas, dried mushrooms and two eggs."

HOY SUN SAUCE

Again nodding towards a plate of sparrows on the table she added: "Those are baked first and then broiled. We season them with garlic, ginger, boy sun sauce and soy sauce... and a bit of food coloring to pep it up."

"We may take a little longer preparing meals," Mrs. Lumb said, "but to the Chinese woman, cooking is a proud heritage and we don't believe it's improved by hurrying."

"You'll seldom find instant or canned foods in a Chinese home — unless they're western recipes. Canned bean sprouts just don't taste like bean sprouts."

Cabbage is seldom steamed, but fried in vegetable oil and beef juice... meat is usually steamed... ginger is used to flavor everything from chicken to cookies... fried bean cakes are common either by themselves or in soup.

Here are some off-beat Chinese meals: Ever heard of custard as a main course? The Chinese have—they mix it with green pepper and pork, steam it and serve it with rice.

SWEET SOUP

Sweet soup, made with a sugary sauce, eggs and red herb flowers is a stand-by for banquet menus.

A more typical meal is chicken breast fried in oil and coated with corn starch, green peppers, garlic and ginger.

Fish—usually bass or pickerel—is steamed and served with bean sauce, soy and ginger for a meal that takes about 20 minutes to prepare.

Average meal has from four to six courses: a banquet has 10, starting with shark's fin soup and including fried duck, steamed chicken, sea food, cucumbers, rice and pastries.

U.S. Airmen Say

English Girls More Grateful

LONDON (UPI)—American servicemen are marrying British girls at the rate of almost seven a day, the U.S. air force disclosed today.

The Yanks in Britain have walked down the aisle with approximately 2,500 local girls in each of the past three years. In 1959 it was just over 2,600.

"This year," an air force spokesman told United Press International, "the Anglo-American marriage rate is running the same as last year although we don't have any statistics yet."

Why the rush to tie the knot for so many of the 30,000 U.S. servicemen in England — all air force except for a few hundred army and navy men?

HE'S BOSS

"I like to feel I'm the boss when I come home after taking orders all day in the office."

That was airman James Miller, 24, of Flushing, N.Y., talking. He married his pert, brown-eyed brunette, Pamela, in 1957.

TOO DEMANDING

Miller said: "American girls are just too demanding. They henpeck. If I stay out late my wife doesn't come at me with a rolling pin."

Miller is one of a number of U.S. airmen with British wives at South Ruislip air base near London.

"I've gone out with a lot of American girls," said airman

Andre Vernier, 26, of Fall River, Mass.

"English girls are a little more grateful for anything you do for 'em. American girls take everything for granted — and then they want more."

Vernier was married three months ago. His wife, Maureen, is 21.

Since 1949, when the U.S. military moved back to Britain in force following the Berlin airlift threat, there have been almost 30,000 Anglo-American nuptials.

NO ORDERS

"Most of them have worked out fine," the air force spokesman said.

Airman Miller's wife, Pamela, may have put her finger on why they are successful:

"The American boys say we're less demanding as a rule. Well, we feel American men are less demanding too. You don't get any of them ordering, 'bring my slippers and pipe,' like they were king."

The air force spokesman said it takes five to eight months of paper work before a serviceman gets air force approval for his marriage.

The approval means only that the girl has passed a health and security check. If not she might have trouble with her visa.

Garden Notes

Early Frailty Kills

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I imagine almost everybody knows of individuals who were weak and sickly in childhood, but who forged ahead in later life to become splendid specimens of manhood or womanhood. This is possible in humans only because we live long enough to outgrow youthful weaknesses, but in seedling plants, it doesn't work out that way, for there isn't time to recover from a poor start.

Take onions for example. In its early life, an onion concentrates all its energies on making leaves, and it has no bulb at all underground until the sun climbs high enough into the northern heavens to give us about 16 hours of daylight.

Sometime in June when the lengthening day triggers off the bulb-making instinct in the plant, the role is reversed, and the leaves set about their job of manufacturing nutrients to plump up the bulb.

Obviously, if the plant hasn't made enough foliage by the time the 16-hour day rolls around, the manufacturing equipment isn't adequate to make a big, firm bulb.

If the seeds hung fire through poor soil conditions, or if the baby plants just sat there doing nothing because of adverse weather conditions, the onion crop will never amount to a pinch of coon feathers in later life.

While the onion is rather an extreme example, the principle holds for all plants, flower or vegetable, and it goes all the way back to the germination of the seeds. All other things being equal, the seed which germinates quickly and vigorously will always make a better plant than a slow starter.

To germinate strongly, a seed needs three things — moisture, warmth and air. All three are governed by the condition of the soil in which the seed is sown, and the art and purpose of seed bed preparation is to provide the ideal conditions for seed germination.

Thus, the soil must be broken down finely, without any coarse lumps — the "fine tilth" mentioned in the garden books — so the seed will lie in close and intimate contact with the soil particles, and with the fine film of moisture which clings to each grain of soil.

A seed bed must be firm, too, and for the same reason. A light and fluffy soil condition will leave small seeds suspended in the air spaces between the soil particles.

The warmth required for seed germination is secured from sun heat, and this is why we must wait until the soil warms up before sowing.

The heavier and wetter types of soil are slower in warming up than lighter sandy or gravelly kinds, but there are various tricks of the trade by which earlier sowing can be done in heavy soil.

For instance, seed beds can be raised slightly above the surrounding terrain, thereby getting rid of excess moisture and permitting the sun's heat to penetrate.

A favorite technique of the old English professional gardener was to dress the soil surface with soot which, being black, absorbed more of the sun's rays. I find that even sticky clay soil can be brought into condition for earlier sowing by mixing a fair amount of dry peat moss into the top few inches.

Each kind of seed has its own ideal temperature for vigorous germination. Onions, parsnips, broad beans, cornflowers, smooth-seeded peas and sweet peas can sprout under fairly low soil temperatures, and may be sown early, while corn, beans, nasturtiums and zinnias require much more warmth, and it is seldom safe to put these in the ground until the soil is actually warm to the touch.

He's the Greatest

No Sponsor for Sir Winston

By MARIE TORRE

One of the more pressing questions to be answered by television in the coming months is, "Can Sir Winston Churchill draw a TV sponsor?"

"Any doubt?" you ask. Well, . . . yeh! There's cause for doubt, especially if you've been following television developments of late. A report the other day told how a situation comedy starring Tom Ewell has been snapped up, sight unseen, by two sponsors. The Ewell name and the indelible enthusiasm of the CBS executives had been enough. Then there was an item about a Hollywood sprig named Tab Hunter underwriting a fall series, "Bachelor at Large." He has a sponsor.

Next season's new Westerns have sponsors. Adventure series have sponsors.

But here it is almost three months since ABC announced, with a proud flourish of trumpets, that it had acquired Sir Winston's memoirs for a weekly half hour series to begin next November, and the sponsorless silence is deafening. In television, it would seem, Sir Winston is in a class with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Clare Booth Luce, neither of whom has had any luck finding willing TV sponsors.

But ABC executives dare not entertain the shattering comparison.

"Several advertisers have expressed an interest in seeing the property," said a spokesman. "Frankly, we've been playing it quietly. I mean we haven't really gone out to make a pitch."

Sir Winston must be pitched? He may be the greatest statesman of our time to the world-at-large, but to the sponsors of television programs he is obviously not the best rating bet for their money. If they've considered him at all. Some haven't, wouldn't.

But Not to TV

Cigarette companies, for example! Bad enough there's an ever-present cigar in Sir Winston's mouth, but he also has a namesake in American cigarettes.

Meanwhile, ABC is forging ahead with plans for the Churchill series, which will begin in late November, with or without a sponsor. As a network executive said, "We're committed." The position assigned to the series is 10.30 Sunday nights, meaning it will do battle with the indefatigable "What's My Line?" about which it's been said for years, "It's ready to be taken."

Also forging ahead is composer Richard Rodgers, who will create the musical score for the series, just as he did for the memorable "Victory at Sea."

Mr. Rodgers goes to Europe Monday to tend to the London company of "Flower Drum Song," and while he's there he's expected to meet with Sir Winston.

Hollywood Today

Frankie Rushes Things

HOLLYWOOD — (NANA) — Frank Sinatra almost collapsed in the frantic rush to finish his "Ocean's 11" before the strike deadline. Worked 18 hours daily to get the last foot of film in the can before 5-day. And then Frank signed the new contract with the screen actors, making all his rush unnecessary.

And Paul Newman plopped straight into bed on arrival in New York after obliging his 20th Fox bosses by working nonstop in "From the Terrace" to finish this expensive picture before the big shutdown.

There will be a new pattern in Hollywood work behavior as a result of the fight with the actors and writers against the major studio producers. The lots will soon be crisscrossed by independent producers who are also actors in such cases as Gary Cooper, Kirk Douglas, Tony Curtis, etc. And the majors will sell and rent space on their lots and serve as releasing outfits.

Rocky Marciano will be paid $15,000 for a cigar commercial to run 26 weeks on television.

Manie Van Doren showed me the $2,000 ring she received from her new beau, Tony Santori — a boy who is working his way through a real college. He must have a good job.

Jayne Meadows, who plays a working reporter in "CC," says she lost 18 pounds in two weeks for the part.

Dean Martin was offered a co-starring role with Clark Gable in an African safari picture that Howard Hawks is planning. Dean refused, saying, "Me go to Africa? I'm too tired to walk around the block."

Jerry Lewis decided to finish "The Believer" in Florida, rather than waste time by returning to turbulent Hollywood. Walter Winchell was to have played a part in the picture, but will stick around in Hollywood for his chores in the Desilu "Untouchables."

Zsa Zsa Gabor asked her friend, Jimmy Woolf, who has an interest in a television station in England, if she could do a part in a Molnar play the station was putting on. "Okay," said Jimmy, but by the time her agents had finished putting in all the clauses and requests — approval of cast, special American-type taping, etc. — Woolf, who does not believe Miss Gabor is the world's greatest actress, said wearily, "Forget it."

So it's true — the interest of Glenn Ford in Debbie Reynolds. No wonder Eleanor Powell, who gave up a great career when she married Glenn, couldn't pretend everything was fine and dandy.

Regardless of what happens in Hollywood, Yves Montand will be in Japan by the end of April to fulfill his engagement in Tokyo. Yves had to cancel his previous date there when he signed for the Marilyn Monroe "Let's Make Love" movie three days before he was due to fly to Tokyo. Now his appearance there is a must, from the French state department.

Joseph Schildkraut is being sporting about it, but cannot understand why he was overlooked in the Oscar nominations for "Diary of Anne Frank." Joe played the part for years on stage before the movie was made. I'm sure Shelley Winters will win for her supporting role in this picture. But Shelley supporting Millie Perkins — that's a laugh!

Their friends insist that the Barbara Warner-Claude Terrail marriage is in the deep doldrums. And yet when Claude was in New York he made the rounds with his father-in-law, Jack L. Warner.

Lee Remick, having a soda at Schrafft's, was heard to say, "Imagine, they had the nerve to ask me to do a commercial on TV. But that's how Lee started and the practice is very lucrative."

Trevor Howard, who, in my opinion, is one of the best actors in the world, said "No" to television in New York, and jetted to St. Moritz with wife Helen Cherry, "for our first holiday together in three years." Wise Trevor, lucky Helen.

You will see socialite actress Natalie Trundy in an upcoming "Adventures in Paradise." Young Natalie speaks French, Italian and Spanish fluently and pleasant English. She looks like a rounder Grace Kelly and is a second cousin of Prince Rainier.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own homes without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, very striking improvement was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved and while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or irritants of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

The new healing substance is offered in supporting or withdrawal form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Supporters or Preparation H Withdrawals, with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Greek Sailor Almost Died

John's Going Home!

To Those Who Helped:
'Thanks Million Times'

By ERITH M. SMITH

John Tourountos is on his way home—a not very remarkable fact, except that John hasn't seen his family for three years, and almost didn't make it at all.

Resident of Poreo, Greece, John was ship's carpenter aboard the freighter Pacific Pioneer. Last September, in B.C. waters, he fell 45 feet into a hold, fracturing an arm and his jaw, and receiving severe internal injuries.

He was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital here and spent the next six months fighting his way back to health.

Then, the owners of his vessel went bankrupt and the ship was sold. John Tourountos was an "orphan."

His needs were looked after by the Sick Mariners Service Fund, to which all vessels entering Canadian waters must contribute. But there was concern for his wife and five children.

Victorians, learning of this, raised a fund which went to Mrs. Tourountos.

Yesterday, through arrangements made by the federal department of immigration, the sailor headed for home.

Excited, John was up by 4 a.m. and by 7 a.m. was dressed and visiting about the hospital, saying goodbye to his halting English to his friends.

Through interpreter, Gust Martin, 202 Howell, he asked the Colonist to say thanks to the sisters, nurses, staff and doctors for saving his life; to all kind Victorians who helped him, and to the immigration department.

"He added a special thanks to the Greek people of B.C. and the associations which helped look after him and his family."

"I am grateful. I will never forget as long as I live. Thank them all for me million times." Is he going to sea again?

"No! I'll stay at home and be a carpenter."

Ten-Year Supply

Japan Orders Nuclear Fuel From Britain

LONDON (AP)—Japan Monday placed advance orders for a 10-year uranium supply for Asia's first commercial nuclear power station.

The formal agreement between the Japan Atomic Power Company and Britain's Atomic Energy Authority provides for deliveries starting in 1963, the year before the reactor is scheduled to go into operation 65 miles northwest of Tokyo.

The 150,000-kilowatt plant is patterned after Britain's Calder Hall atomic power station and will be installed by the General Electric Company of Britain.

N.H. Primary

Kennedy, Nixon On Top

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP)—Republican Vice-President Richard Nixon and Democratic Senator John Kennedy of Massachusetts rolled up overwhelming victories in New Hampshire primary Tuesday but Kennedy's appeared to be proportionately greater.

The two presidential hopefuls, however, were not running against each other, as in a general election. Each man was on a separate ballot.

What the result meant was that more Democrats apparently turned out to vote than was expected to do so—or that fewer Republicans went to the polls in this traditionally Republican state.

Nixon—unopposed on the Republican preference poll ballot—was far outdistancing New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller, who received a small write-in vote.

Kennedy handily defeated his only ballot rival, Chicago manufacturer Paul C. Fisher, in the Democratic popularity contest.

Wreck Relations with U.S.

Bay Street 'Boilers' Toronto Black Spot

TORONTO (UPI)—No minority group does more to hurt United States-Canadian relations than the "boiler room" brokers on Toronto's Bay Street, a member of the Ontario Legislature charged Tuesday.

Elmer Sopha (L. Sudbury) joined in a general opposition condemnation of the tactics of some promoters on the Toronto Stock Exchange during a heated session in the legislature.

He said the U.S. government had been trying to arrange with the Canadian government to allow it to extradite the promoters who push stocks as valueless as "moose pasture in Northern Ontario."

"Of every 5,000 mining companies formed, I don't think it would be an exaggeration to say only one becomes a producing mine," Sopha said.

The Toronto stock exchange wouldn't be possible anywhere except in Canada because of the gamble involved in mining speculation, he added.

"A terrific flood of literature flows out from these shops on Bay Street to as far as California," Sopha said. "The promoters then sit back and watch the money orders, cheques and cash flood back to Toronto. For this the investors get a new shiny certificate and regular reports on how the mine is doing."

The House broke into laughter when Sopha cited an instance of seeing a bucket shop operator sitting in a pile-driver on Yonge Street, during the building of the city's first subway in 1944, talking to a prospect in Colorado.

"Here we are at the mine head, the shaft is down 400 feet," Sopha said the promoter told the interested American investor.

"An armed bank robber gets 15 to 20 years, but if you can concoct a nefarious scheme to sell wallpaper to widows, orphans and U.S. investors and perfect it, you can wind up the president of a service club," Sopha declared.

Attorney General Kelso Roberts said that unlike most other stock exchanges in the world the Toronto Stock Exchange has no statutory or other supervision. However, he said its operation is under study and may lead to this type of control.

"There will be a thorough inquiry into the whole exchange and recommendations will be forthcoming," Roberts said.

'Curse of the Country' That's Home Freezers

DUNCAN—Home freezers have become "the curse of the country" to farmers plagued by modern-day cattle rustlers, Cowichan Agricultural Society president Stan Owens said yesterday.

He was commenting on the theft of a Red Poll heifer this week from the pasture of Mr.

and Mrs. Charles Lucas, who live three miles south of Duncan.

"In the old days, when the carcass was cut up there were so many people involved that there was a chance information would leak out," said Mr. Owens. "Now, one guy can put it away in his freezer and quietly eat it."

HOW YOUR LIVER BILE HELPS BREAK DOWN FATS IN THE DIGESTIVE TRACT

Laboratory tests have now proved that liver bile emulsifies fats... actually breaks them down. It is an established fact that when liver bile is added to fatty solids, the fats are broken down and form a smooth, easy-flowing mix.

In your digestive tract, liver bile helps break down fats the same way. Many of the foods you eat reach the digestive tract as undigested fatty solids. Your golden liver bile helps break down these fats... for easier and more complete digestion.

Carter's Little Liver Pills' exclusive formula of vegetable ingredients relieves irregularity gently and effectively. At the same time, it actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fats in your digestive tract.

So when you feel sluggish, headachy, nervous and need a laxative, take Carter's Little Liver Pills. Remember, Carter's not only relieves irregularity, but actually improves the flow of liver bile. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today!

Starvation Key Weapon

Weedkiller
Off to WarNation's Food
Vulnerable
Expert Says

Whole nations could perish from starvation and disease in a third world war fought with germs, weed-killers and insecticides as weapons, an eminent plant scientist said in Victoria last night.

Dr. William Newton, former director of plant pathology at the Dominion experimental station at Stanichon, told Victoria North Kiwanis Club an intensified study of "the delicate balance of nature" is our best defence against biological attack.

MADE IT CLEAR

"I am glad the people of Victoria have made it clear that they wish to have Thetis Lake park left undisturbed," he said.

Biological warfare is essentially the art of upsetting nature's balance, said Dr. Newton. Unless we learn more about it through study of plants and wildlife in undisturbed areas like Thetis Lake "we will not be able to offset deliberate attempts by enemies to upset the normal balance."

RIDICULOUSLY EASY

He said the means of destroying our food supplies are so "ridiculously easy I am quite sure the militarists of the East have given the matter considerable thought."

Intercontinental missiles could be used to create a "fall-out" of potent plant killer over our principal crop production areas, said Dr. Newton. He added weedkillers are in existence that have "a very injurious effect" upon soil fertility.

EXTREMELY INJURIOUS

Insecticides, some of them extremely injurious to man, have a lethal effect that persists for "an alarming time," and these compounds have an advantage over atomic bombs and disease-spreading organisms because they do not "boomerang" on the user.

Dr. Newton said a few spores of a new strain of wheat rust dropped on a crop in Texas would virtually wipe out the harvest in the whole midwest including Manitoba and Saskatchewan in a single season.

BEEF AND MILK

In a similar manner animal diseases like foot and mouth disease could be used to destroy beef and milk supply.

Nevertheless, said Dr. Newton, the future of the world would be better safeguarded if militarists on both sides turned from nuclear weapons to the development of "equally fiendish and destructive biological weapons."

After a war involving modern biological weapons, he said, at least part of humanity and part of the world would remain unimpaired, while an atomic war would spell the end of civilization and fill the world with degenerates.

Is Milk Drinking
Trifle Gauche?

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP)—Do you consider it gauche to drink milk in public? You're apparently not alone.

A solemn group of individuals from the milk industry has come to the conclusion that many people think milk isn't a "socially acceptable" drink—unlike coffee, tea, beer, liquor or soft drinks.

To increase milk consumption, they were told yesterday, the white stuff must have its social status raised.

Richard J. Warner, executive director of the milk industry foundation, told the institute of dairying at Washington State University that a $140,000 research program had shown that many people are embarrassed to serve milk on social occasions or even when friends are present.

"If whisky distillers' clear manufacturers and soft drink bottlers can develop an improved social image for their products, the milk industry can do it too."

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Margaret's fiancé, Antony Armstrong-Jones, is designing her wedding dress, the Daily Mirror reports.

He said the construction industry had suggested a pre-qualification system be set up.

Mr. Gaglardi charged Mr. Strachan with making "wild, fantastic, unrelated and absurd statements... without making accusations... heading hunting... blackening someone's reputation and trying to break down the moral fibre of my department."

Mr. Gaglardi, vigorously denying the allegations, boomed: "Although all my contractors are my friends, no contractor would ever dare say he gained an advantage."

He said there were interlocking directorships in many of the companies.

"I am not concerned with interrelationships and changes of directors of these companies. I am interested in safeguarding the public purse," Mr. Gaglardi replied.

Plungers, Dawdlers, Cyclists, Buses, Parents! 'Amazed More Not Killed'

Crosswalk plungers, dawdling schoolchildren, unhelmeted motorcyclists, Victoria buses and thoughtless parents came in for criticism yesterday at a Victoria-Esquamalt health board meeting.

The board recommended to city council that buses should be required to have rear-view mirrors and turn signals mounted on both sides, and to the provincial poison control organization that a poison safety week should be established in B.C.

Discussion stemmed from accident statistics and a recent case of a motorcycle being trapped between the curb and a turning bus.

"It would be a big step forward if everyone on a two-wheeled vehicle in B.C. was compelled to wear a helmet," health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy suggested.

"I notice in Vancouver every bus has a blinker light near the driver on both sides," said chairman Richard Reeve. "If it's good in Vancouver, it would be good here."

Turning to poisoning cases, the board agreed more promotional work should be done.

"In 90 per cent of cases it's straight neglect," said Coun. G. K. Sammon of Esquamalt. "Keeping aspirins and so forth within children's reach, and detergents and such under the sink."

And, elsewhere on the safety scene, Dr. Mahaffy found schoolchildren in crosswalks "very, very careless—they seem to think, 'We'll take our time and do as we like. You don't dare touch us in a crosswalk.'"

Wanted in City Policemen

It's Brain Not Brawn

Toronto may hold out for king-sized policemen; Winnipeg may yearn for a more compact constable; but two of Greater Victoria's police chiefs maintain that it's brain not brawn they look for when they hire a policeman.

It all began yesterday when Winnipeg's Chief Robert Taft said he's planning to hire shorter policemen because cars are getting smaller and lower. He wants his policemen to look "like ordinary, successful business men or tradesmen."

But not Magistrate C. O. Bick of Toronto.

"We like to see a policeman on the street who looks like he can take care of himself," he said.

"If you have pipsqueaks jumping out of cars the people won't fear them. There will just be an increasing number of assaults on police officers," he said.

As far as Chiefs Gilbert Stancombe of Esquamalt and W. A. Pearson of Saanich are concerned, it's brain, not brawn, that matters.

"There's a growing trend to recognition of shorter men in police work," said Chief Stancombe, who declined to give his own height but looks to be six feet tall. "Our commission doesn't hire on size, but on aptitude."

"Appearance, intelligence, and manners with the public are the basic factors in selecting our men," said Chief Pearson, five feet nine inches.

"Ours is becoming a more and more exacting profession, and I can see the time ahead when the public will recognize it as such, and not just as an outlet for big, ungainly men."

No Blame Attached In Island Air Crash

DUNCAN—A hastily-recovered inquest into the deaths of two men in the crash of a light plane at Maple Bay Sunday could not determine last night which of the men was piloting the plane and attached the blame for the crash to no one.

On Tuesday, Coroner Dr. J. S. Goodbrand said "at some later date" it may be decided an inquest need not be held.

His only comment last night was that the inquest "had to be finished." He would not say whether he had been ordered to reopen the hearing.

Uncle of the plane's owner told the six-man jury—including three pilots—that the pilot of the plane evidently tried to speed up the motor, but in doing so choked it with too much fuel.

Joseph M. Kuzik said he watched the plane pass over his home.

"I heard him throttle up as though he wanted more speed," he said. "It didn't respond as I thought it should. It sounded more as though it choked."

Witness Norman D. Gardner, also of Maple Bay, said the plane was flying "very slow and very low."

Dr. Joseph Pawlowski, a former RCAF flying instructor, said the plane's owner, Richard Clark, and Lloyd Gore were killed by the impact of the crash. Both men were from Vancouver.

The coroner's jury recommended that "anyone seeing a crash immediately notify police."

Battered Sailor 'Taken for Ride'

A battered sailor left HMCS Naden Hospital yesterday after a week's treatment and told police he had been "taken for a ride" in Victoria, beaten up and dumped from a car on Hillside Avenue.

LS Richard Walter Colquhoun, 1240 Newport, said he was waiting for a bus in civilian clothes at Douglas and Yates about midnight last Tuesday when a man pulled up and offered him a ride.

Soon another man appeared from the back seat and grabbed him from behind the neck so fiercely that he passed out, Colquhoun said.

When he came to, about 1 a.m., he was thrown from the car on Hillside near Shelbourne. He had been beaten in the face but had not been robbed. The sailor went to the home of a friend who drove him to hospital.

He told police he didn't know the men who attacked him and said he had not been in any trouble.

Two Lung Cancer

Fifteen new active cases of tuberculosis have been discovered as the result of Operation Doorstep in which 18,202 X-ray pictures were taken in downtown Victoria.

Esquamalt health board was informed yesterday.

In addition, B.C. Tuberculosis Society program director D. A. Geikie said, further diagnostic work is proceeding in 45 cases, and five persons were found to have other chest infections, two of them lung cancer.

Of the 15 definite tuberculosis cases, he said, 14 were minimal. "This is one of the basic reasons for surveys of this type. We found these cases in the early stages, and four or five of the people won't even have to leave work."

Health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy told the board tuberculosis testing of all junior high school students is planned in May. Senior high school students have already been tested.

Don't Stop Tourists Squire Asks

Highways Minister Gagliardi yesterday promised to give consideration to a plan which would open the Alberni-Tofino road to tourists at all hours during June, July and August.

The plan was proposed by John Squire (CCF, Alberni) who said there are going to be thousands of tourists travel that road this summer and "I don't want to see them backed up outside steel gates waiting for a company official to unlock the gate... like something out of the days of King Arthur."

The road is now closed to the public between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. when logging trucks operate on it. The road was built by MacMillan and Bloedel and Powell River at the Sproat Lake end, the government in the centre, and B.C. Forest Products at the Tofino end.

Mr. Squire's plan is to have the logging companies move their operations away from the road in the summer months... "they have hundreds of thousands of acres they can log away from the road... The company (MacMillan and Bloedel) doesn't need to be on that road all year round."

Mr. Squire complained that government graders are keeping the road graded for the logging companies.

"This road belongs to us. Either it does, or you take those graders off," Mr. Squire demanded. Mr. Gagliardi said he had written to MacMillan and Bloedel and Powell River and the company wrote back and said it must log in that area in the summer months.

"We are still negotiating with the company and will continue to do so," he said. "Until the issue is clarified the road will be closed at those times."

"Just because the company submits a plan, it doesn't mean that is the only plan it can do," Mr. Squire pointed out. "They have big fir stands elsewhere. There is no need for them to log there in the summer."

Heifer Rustled from Farm Freezers a 'Curse' To Cattle Ranchers

DUNCAN—An elderly couple—the husband in hospital with pneumonia—has reported the first case of rustling here in recent months.
A two-year-old Red Poll heifer was taken from a pasture on the land of its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lucas of Phipps Road, about three miles south of Duncan.
It brought the comment from Stan Owens, Cowichan Agricultural Society president, that the deep-freeze has become "the curse of the country" to farmers. He had a dairy farm near the Lucases, and is a friend of the couple.
"In the old days when the carcass was cut up there were so many people involved that there was a chance information would leak out, said Mr. Owens. "Now one guy can put it away in his home freezer and quietly eat it."
Mr. Owens said the theft will possibly come up before the society at their directors' meeting Friday, but that there is little likelihood that a reward would be offered be-

MAYOR ANDERSON

'Hear! Hear!' in Chamber Citizens Ordered Out As Mayor Bans Issue

ALBERNI—A score of Alberni citizens were ordered from the council chambers by Mayor Mabel Anderson Monday.

One man defied the mayor's order and remained for duration of a meeting which culminated in an order from the mayor that all future correspondence on the post office issue be withheld from council.

A letter from W. F. Marshall triggered a dispute in which the mayor and Ald. T. S. Barnett contended for the floor, points of order were raised and never settled, and rulings of the chair were appealed.

Mr. Marshall wrote asking council to call a public meeting to make ratepayers aware of reasons for a recent council decision on the postal issue.

Early this year council authorized a letter to the post office department asking for enlargement and improvement of Alberni post office, although previous information from the postmaster-general had indicated that such action would preclude establishment of mail delivery in the city for at least 15 years.

A motion by Ald. Barnett, seconded by Ald. G. A. Dunbar, that a spokesman for the delegation supporting Mr. Marshall's letter be heard was declared illegal by Mayor Anderson. Her ruling, based on an interpretation of Section 178 of the Municipal Act, was questioned by both mover and seconder who declared that the motion would not, in effect, be reopening for council action a matter on which action had already been taken.

It was after several cries of "hear! hear!" from the audience while Ald. Barnett was on his feet that Mayor Anderson ordered the spectators to leave.

Hartley Ahines, operator of a local trailer court, declined to accede to the order. He suggested that he could be removed only by the RCMP, whereupon the mayor informed him that he might remain.

A motion to receive and table the Marshall letter was finally passed although the mayor protested at even this action being taken.

Following conclusion of other business, Mayor Anderson ordered that any further correspondence which may come in on the post office issue be deleted from the agenda.

Protests against the order were heard from Aldermen C. M. Blair, Barnett, Dunbar and R. Foxcroft, but Mayor Anderson insisted that she was within her rights.

"This matter cannot come before council again for six months. I cannot and will not have a repetition of tonight's discussion," she declared.

"You are quite right, we cannot reopen the issue for six months, but this order to withhold letters is, in effect, taking away the citizens' right to communicate with their elected representatives," Ald. Barnett said.

City Clerk Jim Sawyer requested the mayor to put her order in writing if she wished him to follow her directive. The mayor took exception to the request, declaring that it was sufficient that she had given the order before the council.

However, on insistence of Mr. Sawyer that she was placing an employee in an unfair position, Mayor Anderson exclaimed, "Alright then. And from now on we'll have all council business in writing. All main motions must from now on be in writing and all committee business must be brought in in writing."

Power Pole Crashes Down

'Black-Ice' Skid Injures Woman

NANAIMO—Post office worker Mrs. Hilda Hebert was taken to hospital following a spectacular accident on Cedar Highway yesterday morning.
Mrs. Hebert's car skidded on "black ice" and struck a power pole. The pole broke off in the middle and brought wires down across the highway.
She was rushed to hospital by Island Ambulance and detained with back, leg and arm injuries.
Also involved in an accident on the same highway were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Smith. Their car was demolished when it left the road after skidding on an icy patch. The occupants were not seriously hurt.

Responsibility for Park Accepted with Foreboding

Driver Hurt In Crash

ALBERNI—David Cornell, 34, was reported in satisfactory condition in West Coast General Hospital where he was taken Monday morning after the car he was driving went off the road east of Alberni.
He suffered chest and knee injuries in the crash.

NANAIMO—Parks Commissioner Dr. Roy Macmillan said the civic properties and recreation commission accepted the responsibility of administering Exhibition Park with a sense of foreboding.

The park, formerly handled by the Vancouver Island Exhibition Association, was turned over to the commission by city council.

The council had the lease on the park returned by the association last year when it ran into financial difficulties.

Dr. Macmillan said that estimates for the park could not be included in the budget to city council because the situation had not yet been studied. He doubted whether records kept by the association could be used as a guide.

Scientist:

Germ War Worst

Whole nations could perish from starvation and disease in a third world war fought with germs, weed-killers and insecticides as weapons, an eminent plant scientist said in Victoria last night.

Dr. William Newton, former director of plant pathology at the Dominion Experimental Station at Saanichton, told Victoria North Kiwanis Club an intensified study of "the delicate balance of nature" is our best defence against biological attack.

MADE IT CLEAR

"I am glad the people of Victoria have made it clear that they wish to have Thetis Lake park left undisturbed," he said.

Biological warfare is essentially the art of upsetting nature's balance, said Dr. Newton. Unless we learn more about it through study of plants and wildlife in undisturbed areas like Thetis Lake "we will not be able to offset deliberate attempts by enemies to upset the normal balance."

RIDICULOUSLY EASY

He said the means of destroying our food supplies are so "ridiculously easy I am quite sure the militarists of the East have given the matter considerable thought."

Intercontinental missiles could be used to create a "fall-out of potent plant killer" over our principal crop production areas, said Dr. Newton. He added weedkillers are in existence that have "a very injurious effect" upon soil fertility.

EXTREMELY INJURIOUS

Insecticides, some of them extremely injurious to man, have a lethal effect that persists for "an alarming time," and these compounds have an advantage over atomic bombs and disease-spreading organisms because they do not "boomerang" on the user. Nevertheless, said Dr. Newton, the future of the world would be better safeguarded if militarists on both sides turned from nuclear weapons to the development of "equally fiendish and destructive biological weapons."

After a war involving modern biological weapons, he said, at least part of humanity and part of the world would remain unimpaired, while an atomic war would spill the end of civilization and fill the world with degenerates.

Is Milk Drinking Trifle Gauche?

PULLMAN: Wash. (AP)—Do you consider it gauche to drink milk in public? You're apparently not alone.

A solemn group of individuals from the milk industry has come to the conclusion that many people think milk isn't a "socially acceptable" drink—unlike coffee, tea, beer, liquor or soft drinks.

To increase milk consumption, they were told yesterday, the white stuff must have its social status raised.

'Revolutionary'

Navy to Get New Sonar

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian destroyers are to be equipped with a revolutionary type of submarine detection gear, it was learned Tuesday.

The equipment, known as variable depth sonar, was developed by the defence research board's naval research establishment at Dartmouth, N.S.

It is towed behind destroyers. A $2,746,220 contract for production of about a dozen of these sonars has been awarded to a Halifax firm. The sonar can be lowered or raised to the thermal layer where the submarine is lurking, thus increasing the range at which the position of the sub can be continuously pinpointed until a successful attack is launched.

The sonar is carried in a 10-foot-long frame which can be lowered or raised by electronic command from the ship. The British Admiralty plans to order the equipment. The sonar is planned for the six new Mackenzie class destroyers on which construction has started.

Tony Styles Bridal Dress

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret's fiancé, Anthony Armstrong-Jones, is designing her wedding dress, the Daily Mirror reports.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan yesterday charged Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi with using his position in the handling of contracts to benefit "companies sympathetic or friendly with this government."

He said $12,000,000 in contracts are involved and "I am convinced that contracts are being given and handled in a manner which does damage to the public purse."

SALARY VOTE

"I find it difficult to believe there has been no political interference," Mr. Strachan stated in the legislature during discussion of the highway minister's salary vote.

Mr. Gaglardi, vigorously denying the allegations, boomed: "Although all my contractors are my friends, no contractor would ever dare say he gained an advantage."

EQUAL FOOTING

"They are all on an equal footing and on the same basis," Mr. Gaglardi charged Mr. Strachan with making "wild, fantastic, unrelated and absurd statements... without making accusations... headline hunting... blackening someone's reputation and trying to break down the moral fibre of my department."

EVERY DOLLAR

"Every contract and every job done and every dollar paid in the public accounts," Mr. Gaglardi said, "Nobody can get a contract from the government unless he bids."

"It is absolutely impossible for any contract to cost the people any extra money. The contracts are all studied by the engineers and officials of the highways department."

NO REGARD

Mr. Strachan charged that "contracts had been awarded without regard to financial stability or engineering capability of firms concerned." He said the construction industry had suggested a pre-qualification system be set up. Mr. Gaglardi replied that a system of pre-qualification of contractors would put a preferred list on contractors.

"I think this is a free country and one of the advantages God gives to you and me is the opportunity to make $1,000,000 or go broke."

He said the contractors' association was a closed shop.

Mr. Strachan charged there has been "a bewildering array of changes of ownership and changes of names" among the companies getting highways contracts.

DIRECTORSHIPS

He said there were interlocking directorships in many of the companies.

"I am not concerned with inter-relationships and changes of directors of these companies. I am interested in safeguarding the public purse," Mr. Gaglardi replied.

Scores Perish In Rains

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (Reuters) — Nearly 100 persons are dead or missing after violent cloudbursts in Brazil's southern state of Espirito Santo, it was reported Tuesday.

A radio report quoted the state governor as saying 30 bodies have been recovered and 60 others are missing.

18 Men Trapped 485 Feet Down

LOGAN, W. Va. (UPI) — A mistle that the men would be rescued. He said their fate hinges on whether they erected yesterday and it was feared a deadly carbon monoxide may fire.

Mine officials at first expressed optimism that the miners would be rescued unharmed. But one of the men who made his way to the surface said carbon monoxide was getting into the mine shaft.

Willis Carter, 46, one of two men who made their way to the surface after being trapped inside the Island Creek Coal Co.'s No. 22 mine at nearby Holden "with the original work force," said "the odds are against them."

Paul Lingo, deputy director of the state's mines department, said he was "very pessimistic."

Victoria Calm Over News

Transport Minister George Hees told the House of Commons in Ottawa last night that work will start this fiscal year on a $1,100,000 airport terminal at Patricia Bay.

But Victoria officials who have been fighting for airport improvement greeted the news with caution.

"They've told us this so often we don't know whether to believe them or not," said W. A. Pendray, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

PROMISES SEEN

"What we'd like to see is some results instead of the kind of promises we've seen for the last three years."

Equally restrained in his reaction to the news was Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, who said:

EACH TIME

"I am delighted to hear that they're going ahead with it, but then I've been delighted each time I've heard it."

Ald. Edgelow termed the Hees announcement "long overdue," and Mr. Pendray said he would start to feel jubilant "when I see the thing under way."

HELD UP

The announcement quoted Mr. Hees as saying the new passenger terminal project had been held up while studies were being made to determine the effects of a proposed helicopter service between Victoria, Vancouver and other mainland points.

"That's news to me," said Ald. Edgelow.

MP CREDITED

Mr. Hees credited Victoria MP A. DeB. McPhillips for his interest in the project.

A former Liberal transport minister, Lionel Chevrier, yesterday described Patricia Bay Airport terminal as a "glorified chicken coop."

Following Mr. Hees' announcement, transport officials said they believed construction of the new building would start before Dec. 31, and not the end of the fiscal year, which comes March 31, 1961.

U.S. Protest

Cubans Reject 'Insult'

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government Tuesday rejected as "insulting" U.S. protests against Premier Fidel Castro's accusations of sabotage.

Foreign Minister Raul Roa handed a note to U.S. charge d'affaires Daniel Braddock demanding that Cuban officials be addressed with "absolute respect... without descending to offensive utterances of a personal character."

U.S. State Secretary Herter Monday denounced Castro's charge that U.S. officials were responsible for Friday's munitions ship blast in Havana that took more than 50 lives.
